

Efficiency Denotes

Mrs. Violet Tendall—"May I help you?"

The office at W.H.S. was alternately referred to with fear and respect. It was brightened, however, by the presence of industrious secretaries and office girls. Their duties ranged from signing hundreds of absence slips and making announcements to clerical duties. Mrs. Violet Tendall, chief attendance clerk, who directed activities in the front office was assisted by Mrs. June Carlson who also sold lunch tickets. Mrs. Gladys Reinertson, was Mr. Johnson's secretary. Mrs. Louise Brewer, who collected and deposited all monies, worked with Mrs. Joy Steinkamp in the counselors' office. Mrs. Virginia Holst assisted teachers with clerical duties in addition to a fourth hour study hall. Mrs. Gayle Kennedy worked in the library for four hours plus a study hall. These women represented organization and quiet efficiency amidst the hustle and bustle of school life.

Office girl Mary Makepeace makes the rounds.

Mrs. Tendall's army—Top Row: N. Hutchings, K. Lock, M. Vochko, P. Martin, K. Mellen, H. Hibbard, G. Lilienfeld, L. Swanson, M. Falkenstein, L. Lamberger, M. Efraimson, L. Allison, M. Makepeace, J. Hasledalen, M. Hasek, P. Middents, C. Jenson, N. Borrett, L. Hiscock, A. Ice.